HAIR INFORMATION

Caring for your hair and scalp may seem like two separate things, but they are deeply connected because healthy hair begins beneath the skin.

The living parts of the hair—including the hair follicle, hair root, root sheath, and sebaceous gland—are located beneath the scalp. The visible hair shaft, consisting of the cuticle, cortex, and medulla, contains no living cells.

Since the visible hair shaft cannot repair itself through biological processes, proper care is essential. Using high-quality professional hair care products helps protect the cuticle, reduce damage, and maintain healthy, beautiful, and manageable hair.
